City of Hamilton is the Canadian hub of the North American steel industry. Approximately 6.6 million tonnes of steelmaking capacity, or nearly 40 per cent of Canada’s total, is located within City of Hamilton. Another 2.4 million tons of capacity is located within a 50-kilometre (30-mile) radius.

Approximately 16,000 people in City of Hamilton are directly employed in steelmaking and processing. In total, more than 500 firms are directly or indirectly involved in the industry. The Canadian industry supports the North America Free Trade Agreement, which has promoted increased cross-border trade, production efficiencies and product quality. City of Hamilton steelmakers are active participants in the American Iron and Steel Institute and the Canadian Steel Producers Association.

Canadian steelmakers are world class producers, working together to expand the North American market for steel. They are involved in international initiatives to develop new light-weight high-strength steels for the automotive industry. NAFTA partners are also working together to make steel the material of choice for all their major markets and develop innovative uses for steel in areas such as residential construction.

The major customers of NAFTA’s steel industry are located in all three countries – Canada, the U.S. and Mexico - and they work closely with their steel suppliers to ensure that quality inputs result in quality consumer goods.

NAFTA steelmaking capacity

- Canada: 17 million tonnes
- U.S.: 100 million tonnes
- Mexico: 15 million tonnes
The Canadian steel industry has built on a solid foundation to ensure a dynamic future. The industry in Canada consists of 17 steelmaking plants employing 34,500 workers. Total sales of Canadian-made steel topped $11.2 billion in 1998, including more than $3 billion in exports, primarily to the U.S.

Steelmakers in Greater Hamilton account for nearly half of Canada’s production capacity. Roughly two-thirds of all the steel used in Canada is consumed within a 320-kilometre (200-mile) radius. In fact, half of the Canadian automotive industry’s consumption lies within 100 kilometres (65 miles).

Canadian steelmakers are leaders in North America in profits per ton. Since 1988 they have increased productivity by more than 50%. Corporate repositioning that focused on customers, cost reductions and restructuring have led to this dramatic increase.

Among the significant developments during the decade were:

1. Investment in new equipment and technology, totalling more than $4 billion since 1989 to upgrade facilities, skills training and information technology for process and production control.

2. Collaborative research in areas such as thin strip casting, process modelling and electronic sensors.

3. Development of new products – ultralight and ultra high strength steels for automotive parts, new coatings for automotive and construction applications, pipeline steels to meet demanding terrain and weather conditions, and niche products for new markets around the world.
Hamilton steelmakers have all earned the coveted QS-9000 award, which is a prerequisite to doing business with automotive customers in North America and, indeed, around the world. Each time a new piece of equipment is put into place, the steelmaker must go through a stringent examination of process and production control to get approval before the new equipment can be used in steel production for automotive parts. Our steelmakers have also earned the trust of major international steel players to serve global markets. The Z-Line in Hamilton is a joint venture between Stelco Inc. and MC Steel Operations (Canada) Inc., a subsidiary of Tokyo-based Mitsubishi Corporation, to produce world-class zinc-coated sheet steel. Dofasco Inc. has formed similar alliances. DNN, a galvanizing line in Windsor, Ont., is a joint venture with NKK of Japan. Dofasco also recently started production at DoSol Galva, a joint venture with French steelmaker Sollac, a division of Usinor Group, the third largest steel producer in the world. DoSol Galva, located at Dofasco’s Hamilton plant, is the first line in North America able to produce hot-dipped galvanized steel for exposed automotive parts.

Since the signing of the Free Trade Agreement with the U.S. and then the North American Free Trade Agreement with the U.S. and Mexico, Canadian manufacturers have become more competitive in winning export business. Canadian companies have learned how to survive in the global economy. They have done this with the help of a highly skilled labour force, government policies that encourage companies to set up and expand in Canada, and an infrastructure that promotes manufacturing.

City of Hamilton has all the prerequisites to participate in international markets - skilled labour, highway, rail and water transportation, and a supplier base second to none in Canada.

Graph 1 shows a history of Canadian steel mill shipments to domestic, U.S., and offshore markets.

One-third of Canadian steel is shipped to the U.S. The U.S. steel market is very important for Canadian producers. Approximately 30% of Canadian steel production is shipped across the border as a steel mill product (i.e. does not include finished consumer goods). Hamilton steel mills are closer to many major U.S. markets than most U.S. steel mills. This proximity, coupled with world-class equipment and competitive costs, gives Canadian steel an advantage with many U.S. customers close to the border.

City of Hamilton has three steel mills within its boundaries. Two, Stelco Inc. and Dofasco Inc., are integrated producers. The third, Slater Steels’ Hamilton Specialty Bar Division, is a mini-mill. Within another 50 kilometres (30 miles) are another mini-mill, Atlas Specialty Steels, and Stelco’s integrated Lake Erie Works.

Integrated producers are larger plants, producing steel by melting iron ore in blast furnaces, then converting the liquid iron to steel in an oxygen furnace. Mini-mills melt scrap steel in electric arc furnaces to produce liquid steel for their casters. Dofasco is the first integrated producer in North America to have an electric arc furnace feeding its hot mill. All of the mills are certified to ISO 9002.

Steel Producers

Stelco Inc., Hilton Works

Stelco Inc., located at Hilton Works in Hamilton and approximately 50 kilometres away at Lake Erie Steel in Nanticoke, is Canada’s largest steel producer. Stelco’s products from these two plants include plate, hot rolled sheet, cold rolled sheet, galvanized sheet, painted sheet, wire rods, carbon and alloy merchant bars, and reinforcing bars. Stelco’s products are used in many consumer and construction applications, including automotive, appliances, drums and pails, siding, roofing, metal studs, office furniture, pipe and tubing, steel storage tanks, railroad cars, shipbuilding, concrete construction etc.

Within the City of Hamilton area, there are also four processors of steel mill products - Canadian Drawn Steel, Cold Metal Products, Laurel Steel and Union Drawn Steel II. Canadian Drawn, Laurel and Union Drawn all purchase hot rolled bars and pass them through a series of dies to produce a high quality cold finished bar, used extensively in the automotive industry. Cold Metal Products buys hot rolled sheet and cold rolls it on a 6-high cold rolled strip mill, producing a product with very close tolerances that is also used extensively in the automotive industry.

Lastly, all of the major service centres in Canada have significant facilities within City of Hamilton. Collectively, they have equipment to shear, slit, flatten, level, temper, torch cut, pickle and oil and store steel for both the mills and the mills’ customers.
Stelco Inc., Lake Erie Steel Company

Stelco has announced a $265 million capital investment program at Lake Erie Steel that will increase its steelmaking capacity to 2,150,000 tonnes annually and upgrade and expand the 80” hot strip mill to an annual capacity of 3,700,000 tonnes. The total project is expected to be completed in the fourth quarter of 2001.

Atlas Specialty Steels

Atlas Specialty Steels, located approximately 50 kilometres southeast of Hamilton, is the only Canadian producer of tool, stainless, and alloy steels, in bar, billet, bloom and ingot form. Markets are varied, but include machinery, aircraft, specialty tools, construction etc. Because Canada has a limited market for these products, much of the output of Atlas Specialty Steels is exported to the U.S.

- Annual capacity (tonnes): 250,000
- Principal equipment:
  - Steelmaking:
    - One 75-ton electric furnace (50,000 kVA)
    - One 60-ton electric furnace (30,000 kVA)
    - One 60-ton vacuum oxygen refining system
    - Two 38" consumable electrode vacuum arc melting furnaces
    - One 3-strand continuous casting machine for 4\(\frac{3}{4}\)" and 5\(\frac{3}{4}\)" square billets and 8" x 10" blooms
    - One 67-ton vacuum arc degassing refining system
    - One 70-ton argon, oxygen decarbonization refining system
  - Rolling mills:
    - One 26" 1-stand, 2-high, reversing blooming mill
    - One 22" 1-stand, 3-high, cogging mill
    - One 18"-10" 11-stand, 3-high, merchant bar mill (2-18", 4-16", 5-10")
  - Forge equipment:
    - One 2000-t hydro-pneumatic press
    - Seven gas-fired heating furnaces
  - Rolling mills:
    - Five computer-controlled furnaces for bar products up to 35 feet long
    - One 250,000-lb triple drawbench
    - Five bar turners
    - Five centreless grinders
    - Six bar straighteners
    - Two bar polishers
    - One shot blast bar cleaning line

Canadian Drawn Steel

Canadian Drawn Steel, located in Hamilton, purchases hot rolled bars, and cold finishes them into a variety of bars and shafts. These include cold-drawn, cold-drawn and ground, turned and ground, turned and polished bars, and turned and ground polished induction hardened chrome-plated bars. Markets include automotive and machinery industries.

- Annual capacity (tonnes): 54,430
- Principal equipment:

Cold Metal Products

Cold Metal Products, located in Hamilton, purchases hot rolled sheet, cold rolls this to produce cold rolled strip, a product that is narrower and has closer dimensional tolerances than normal cold rolled sheet produced by traditional steel mills. A very substantial portion of Cold Metal Products' output is sold to the automotive industry.

Steel Service Centres

Steel service centres purchase 30% of the steel shipped by Canadian mills (Graph 2 shows the growth of shipments to the Service Centres and their share of domestic mill shipments.) The service centres generally do not consume steel, but rather provide several services to the steel market. They purchase steel and resell it, as is, to customers who do not want to carry inventory or are too small to purchase directly from the mills. They also purchase steel, process it by slitting, shearing, torch cutting, flattening etc. for sale to customers. In addition, they process steel for steel mills and customers without taking ownership.

The service centres in City of Hamilton have a full range of production facilities to process steel and other metal products. Processing services include cut-to-length, cutting and sawing, levelling, bending, shearing, slitting, and pickling. Some of the Service Centres are branches of large publicly-held North American or international corporations, while others are smaller family owned firms.

Maksteel Hamilton (formerly CMP Service Centre Division) is part of Maksteel Inc. (www.maksteel.com), a private Canadian company with locations in both Canada and the U.S. Maksteel’s focus is on the automotive business and the company has expanded to include automotive laser welding, flash seam welding and blanking as part of its services. Maksteel is number 22 in the top 100 service centres in North America, ranked on dollar sales.

Namascoc Ltd., located in Burlington, has cut-to-length, cutting and sawing, levelling, shearing and slitting capabilities. Its parent company, Namascoc (www.namascoc.com), has facilities across Canada and the U.S. and is a subsidiary of Klockner, a major international steel and trading firm. Namascoc is number 14 in the top 100 North American service centres.

Nova Steel, a pickling and slitting facility located in Stoney Creek, is the latest addition to the Novamerican Steel group (www.novamerican.com). Novamerican is a publicly traded Canadian company with 21 service centres and pipe mills in Canada and the U.S. Novamerican is number 23 in the top 100 North American service centres.

Parkdale International (www.ads-online.on.ca/parkdale) is a privately held company selling mainly secondary flat rolled products around the world. Parkdale has levelling and slitting facilities in its only location, Hamilton.

Russel Metals (www.russelmetals.com) is a publicly traded Canadian company with 55 service centres located in Canada and the U.S. Facilities located in City of Hamilton include B&T Steel, McCabe Steel, Russel Metals and V.B. Steel. These facilities have a full range of plate, hot rolled and long products. Russel Metals is tied for fifth in the top 100 North American service centres.

Steel Consumers in Hamilton and Southern Ontario

There are hundreds of steel consumers in the City of Hamilton area and thousands within a radius of 320 kilometres (200 miles). Examples of major customers within 100 kilometres (65 miles) include:

Automotive

The automotive industry is one of the major drivers of the Ontario economy. It is also a major customer for the steel industry. Graph 3 shows the tonnage shipped by Canadian producers to domestic automotive customers. Note that these are direct shipments only, not shipments through other processors and the steel service centres. The graph also shows the share that automotive customers represent of all domestic shipments. Again, this does not include shipments through the other two avenues. While no actual figures are available, automotive could ultimately represent more than 50% of Canadian steel shipments.

Graph 3

Canadian Mill Rolling Mill Product Shipments to Automotive as a % of Total Domestic Shipments

Automotive customers develop long term relationships with steel suppliers, whether they are the mills, the processors or the service centres. The relationship is based on product range, quality, service, delivery and price. Steel suppliers work with automotive customers early in the process of designing or redesigning cars, parts and dies to ensure that the proper grade, size, coating etc. are chosen to maximize production rates and car safety, and minimize costs. It is critical to be involved in the early design stages for new vehicles. This facilitates the design of the steel, and perhaps the stamping dies, and usually ensures the contract to supply the steel when the vehicle goes into production.

As far back as 1987, Dofasco, Stelco and several U.S. steelmakers recognized that they must get even closer to the automakers to ensure that steel remained the major material of choice for motor vehicle production. At that time, the Auto/Steel Partnership was formed to improve production, technology and reliability in the manufacturing and application processes of automotive sheet steels. The work done by the hundreds of people from DaimlerChrysler, Ford and General Motors, as well as 12 of the largest North American sheet steel producers, has meant that these two industries can work together to meet the challenges of today and tomorrow.

Dofasco and Stelco are also members of the international consortium that is developing the UltraLight Steel Auto Body, the UltraLight Steel Auto Suspension and UltraLight Steel Auto Closures. The global project, funded by more than 30 international steel mills, is dedicated to developing the car of the future using lightweight, high strength and corrosion resistant steels. Many of the steels used in today's parts were not being produced as recently as 10 years ago. Not only were the steels not available, but new parts production techniques had not yet been developed. The latest to bring weight and cost reductions to auto parts are laser welding, tailor-welded blanks and hydroforming. The overall objective of these projects is to reduce the weight of a vehicle while maintaining its size and safety to ensure that steel is the material of choice for automotive parts well into the future.

Many automotive customers are located within an hour's drive of Hamilton, representing the major proportion of assembly plants in Canada. They include Cami's Ingersoll plant, DaimlerChrysler's Bramalea plant, Ford's Oakville plant, General Motors' Oshawa plant, Honda's Alliston plant and Toyota's Cambridge plant. In addition, many parts suppliers are located around the region, including several Magna divisions, AG Simpson, Budd Canada, Butler Metal Products, Hayes-Dana, SKD and Walker Exhaust.

The steel mills in the Hamilton area are constantly upgrading facilities to ensure that they continue to be suppliers of choice for the automotive industry. All major car manufacturers are reducing the number of suppliers to ensure product consistency and to maximize purchasing power to reduce costs. Automakers are looking to global steel suppliers for their global automotive plants. Having global partners, world class equipment and competitively priced product keeps our steel mills in the forefront for automotive customers.

Over and above the QS-9000 designation, Hamilton's steelmakers have been recognized for their superior performance by the automotive industry. For example, Dofasco has received Ford's World Excellence Award, General Motors' Mark of Excellence Award, Honda's Production Support Award, and Toyota's Pinnacle Award. Stelco was the first Canadian steel producer to receive DaimlerChrysler's Gold Pentastar Award and is the sole steel supplier to DaimlerChrysler's Bramalea plant where the popular LH models are built. Stelco's bar mill in Hamilton has received the Ford Q1 Award. Slater Steels Hamilton Specialty Bar Division was the first steel bar mill to receive the Ford Q1 Award.
Other Manufacturing

Another major market for steel in Canada is the pipe and tube industry. Graph 4 shows the shipments by the domestic mills to pipe and tube producers, as well as the share of total domestic shipments represented by this industry. Note that there are several major pipe and tube customers within a 100-kilometre (65-mile) radius.

The following companies located within this radius supply a full range of tubular products for the oil and gas business, construction, automotive, appliances and machinery industries:

Atlantic Tube (Mississauga)
Bolton Steel Tube (Bolton)
Bull Moose Tubing (Burlington)
Bundy Tubing (Mississauga)
Bulmota M BF (Mississauga)
Delhi-Solac (Deli)
Lear Corp. (Kitchener)
LTV Copperweld Canada (Brampton and Woodstock)
Stelpipe (Welland)
Welded Tube Canada (Concord)
Welland Pipe (Welland)

There are also many major steel consumers in the City of Hamilton area. While some are Canadian owned, most are subsidiaries of U.S. and offshore parent companies. These include:

American Standard (Cambridge) - bathtubs and sinks
Ball Packaging (Hamilton and Burlington) - food cans
BCL Magnetics (Burlington) - electric motor components
CGC Interiors (Oakville) - residential and non-residential construction components
Camco (Hamilton) - appliances
El Met Parts (Dundas) - electric motor components
Frost Fence (Hamilton) - residential and non-residential fencing
Graf Containers (Stoney Creek) - drums and pails
Harris Steel (Stoney Creek) - fabricated rebar
Hunter Drums (Burlington) - drums and pails
National Steel Car (Hamilton) - railroad rolling stock
Procor (Oakville) - railroad tank cars
Rheem Canada (Hamilton) - hot water tanks
Robertson Building Systems (Hamilton) - steel building systems
Because nearly 50% of Canadian steel capacity is located in the City of Hamilton area, the requirements for goods and services are substantial. It is estimated that there are more than 500 companies supplying products and services to the steel mills and their suppliers. Major requirements include scrap, electricity, natural gas, oil, refractories, oxygen, transportation services, waste disposal services, construction and maintenance services, office supplies and consulting services.

In terms of utilities and related infrastructure, City of Hamilton is by far the premier location in Ontario for cost competitive water and sewer rates, available and affordable electricity and natural gas rates, and world class telecommunications (fibre optic) capabilities. The recent privatization of Ontario Hydro and subsequent formation of Ontario Power Generation are expected to dramatically increase the competition in the power industry and as a result deliver significant cost savings to major industrial and commercial users.

Scrap

Integrated producers use a mix of 25% scrap to 75% molten iron in the steelmaking furnaces, while electric furnaces use 100% scrap. Stelco Hamilton and Lake Erie Works are both integrated plants, producing a total of approximately 4.3 million tonnes of steel. Dofasco has both an integrated steelmaking stream (approximately 2.4 million tonnes capacity), and an electric arc stream (approximately 1.35 million tonnes capacity). Slater Steels Hamilton Specialty Bar Division has an electric arc furnace with a capacity of 380,000 tonnes. Atlas has an electric arc furnace with a capacity of 250,000 tonnes. Therefore, total scrap consumption for the four mills is in the magnitude of 4 million tonnes. Some of this comes from in-house operations as the steel is rolled in the mills. Much of it is purchased from outside suppliers. There are several local scrap suppliers in the area. The main scrap suppliers are Co-Steel Recycling Hamilton Division, I. Waxman & Sons, and Philip Services. As well, all the service centres in the area sell scrap back to the mills after they process the steel through their various pieces of equipment.

Transportation

Thousand of tonnes of steel leave the Hamilton mills every day. More than 95% of shipments are by truck, most independently owned, although some of the trucks are owned by customers. City of Hamilton is located midway between Toronto, Ont., and Buffalo, N.Y. and is an hour's drive away from each of them. A superb transportation network of major highways and arterial roads provides easy access for trucks within the region and beyond. All of the major provincial highways run through or can be quickly accessed from a City of Hamilton location – the Queen Elizabeth Way (Toronto to Buffalo), Highway 403 (Toronto to London, Ont.), and Highways 6 and 401 (Toronto to Detroit, Mich.). The region is served by several major carriers that transport steel and related products both nationally and internationally.

RailLink is an independent, public company that provides cost-effective, custom-focused rail freight connections to both CN (Canadian National) and CPR (Canadian Pacific Railway) core routes. RailLink Southern Ontario began operations in 1997 under a 21-year lease agreement with CN on approximately 103 miles of track in Southern Ontario. RailLink's Hamilton location is primarily a switching operation, feeding traffic to and from the Hamilton industrial core to the CN's core route. The 47-mile line is comprised of the North and Northwest Spur, Hamilton Yard and Parkdale Industrial Yard in the City of Hamilton. RailLink's major customers include Dofasco and Stelco as well as Imperial Oil and Ontario Power Generation.

The John C. Munro Hamilton International Airport is a privately managed, 24-hour airport located just 20 minutes south of Hamilton's industrial core. The airport is quickly becoming the premier international cargo hub in Canada evidenced by recent major capital investments by UPS and Purolator in new, state-of-the-art cargo sorting facilities. The airport offers a full range of services, including 24-hour air traffic control, 24-hour customs and immigration, free parking, ground handling, FBO's, fuel and aircraft maintenance.

The Port of Hamilton handled total cargo tonnage in excess of 12 million tonnes in 1998, the second highest level ever achieved at the port. This figure included a 10% increase in the number of ships over 1997 and a 21% increase in overseas tonnage. The two principal cargoes (80% of domestic tonnage) handled at the port are iron ore and coal, reflecting the importance of the steel sector. This is further verified by the fact that Dofasco and Stelco together are responsible for 25% of all the tonnage shipped on the Great Lakes system.

Earnings for the Port of Hamilton in 1998 were at a record high for the second consecutive year. This is even more significant considering the fact that the port did not increase its cargo rates or berthage charges for the seventh consecutive year. The port, whose shipping season runs from April through December, has more than 15 commercial wharves and nearly 10 kilometres of shipping berths.
It offers container handling facilities, dry-docking and berthage, ship chandlering and customs clearance, inside and outside warehousing, modern cargo handling equipment and efficient stevedores.

Electricity

All the mills are major users of electricity, and purchase their power from local Hydro-Electric Commissions. At this point, no one is involved in co-generation. With the recent deregulation of electricity in the Province of Ontario, it may mean that major power consumers such as these steel mills will end up buying directly from Ontario Hydro.

Refractories

All the mills purchase refractory brick for various operations such as cokemaking, ironmaking, steelmaking, reheating furnaces, ladles and tundishes. While much of the brick comes from the U.S., there are local suppliers as well. These include VRD Canada and Premier Refractories.

Oxygen

Oxygen is used in the steelmaking process to increase heat in the melting process. Air Liquide is the outside supplier of oxygen to the local mills.

Construction and Maintenance

Major maintenance and new construction are ongoing at the mills, whether it is a blast furnace reline, a new reheating furnace, a new galvanizing line or major material handling system changes.
Hundreds of contract workers are involved in the many projects that go on every year. Annual capital spending by the Hamilton mills has been in the $400 million range in recent years. This number fluctuates widely, depending on the need for maintenance, new equipment and the availability of capital to finance such moves. The cyclical nature of the business will periodically force the delay of major capital expenditures not required to maintain current operations.

Education

McMaster University in Hamilton is a full-service university offering educational programs through six Faculties. It is home to a new Steel Research Centre, part of McMaster’s Faculty of Engineering which is the most research-intensive engineering school in the country. Dofasco, one of Hamilton’s largest steel producers and a major supporter of the university, has established two research chairs - one in ferrous metallurgy and the other in process automation and information technology. The Centre itself focuses on steelmaking research and explores methods to improve steel quality, reduce the cost of steelmaking and improve productivity.

Mohawk College of Applied Arts & Science is one of the leading post secondary technical institutions in the province. The college has established an excellent reputation for graduating highly skilled technicians and technologists in steel related and metallurgical programs. Mohawk is currently establishing a Centre of Excellence with the Canadian Foundry Association and will be constructing a $1.7 million metal casting institute. Two new programs have been introduced at the college: 1) mechanical engineering technologist, and 2) material engineering technology and metal casting technologist. Mohawk College is the only post secondary institution offering these programs in the Province of Ontario. In the winter term of 1999/2000, the college also started the first steel framing construction program for residential and commercial applications in the province.

Consulting

While the steel producers in the Hamilton area conduct their own research and development, they also rely heavily on purchasing know-how from international players. There are two international consulting firms - Hoogovens and Hatch Associates - within a half-hour drive from Hamilton which do major work for steel mills around the world. Hoogovens is a subsidiary of the Dutch steelmaker, Hoogovens (recently merged with British Steel Corporation). Hatch Associates is headquartered in Mississauga.
